a brief history

The University of San Francisco began in 1855 as a one-room schoolhouse named Saint Ignatius Academy. Its founding is interwoven with the establishment of the Jesuit Order in California, European immigration to the western United States, and the population growth of California and San Francisco as a result of the California Gold Rush.

On October 15, 1855, the school opened its doors to its first class. Three students showed up, a number that gradually grew to 65 by 1858. In 1859, Anthony Maraschi, S.J., the founding president of Saint Ignatius Academy, incorporated the institution under California state law, obtained a charter to issue college degrees, formed a board of trustees, and renamed the institution Saint Ignatius College. Student enrollment, composed largely of first- and second-generation Irish and Italian immigrants, increased to 457 by 1862.

Further growth in the number of students and rising property taxes prompted Saint Ignatius Church and College to move in 1880 to the corner of Hayes Street and Van Ness Avenue, the current site of the Louise M. Davies Symphony Hall. The college opened its doors to 650 students and rave reviews in the local press. The institution occupied a full city block and was described as having “scientific laboratories and departments” as “thoroughly equipped as money can make them” and a library that contained “the cream of knowledge on all necessary subjects.” The attached church was described as “magnificent” and could hold up to 4,000 people. In 1903, the college added a “splendid new gymnasium,” described as the best in the city.

The history of St. Ignatius Church and College at this location came to an abrupt end on April 18, 1906. On the morning of that day, an earthquake, followed by several days of fire, brought the church and college, and most of San Francisco, to almost complete ruin. The city and the institution, however, quickly rebuilt from the devastation. In September 1906, Saint Ignatius Church and School reopened in temporary quarters, known as the “shirt factory,” on the southwest corner of Hayes and Shrader streets, currently the site of one of the buildings of St Mary’s Medical Center. In 1927, St. Ignatius College moved into its new Liberal Arts Building, the present Kalmanovitz Hall, near the corner of Fulton and Parker Streets. In 1930, at the request of several alumni groups, Saint Ignatius College changed its name to the University of San Francisco.

For 154 years, the University of San Francisco has served the citizens of San Francisco and enriched the lives of thousands of people. The institution has graduated students who went on to become leaders in government, education, business, journalism, sports, and the legal and medical professions. Among its alumni, the university counts three San Francisco mayors, a United States Senator, four California Supreme Court Justices, a California Lieutenant Governor, two Pulitzer Prize winners, three Olympic medalists, several professional athletes, and the former president of Peru.

Today the University of San Francisco enrolls more than 9,000 students in its five schools and colleges: The School of Law, founded in 1912; the College of Arts and Sciences, organized in 1925; the School of Business and Professional Studies, which began in 1925 as the College of Commerce and Finance and was merged with the College of Professional Studies in 2009; the School of Education, which started as the Department of Education in 1947 and was upgraded to a school in 1972; and the School of Nursing, which began as the Department of Nursing in 1948 and became a school in 1954. USF is one of the most ethnically diverse universities in the nation. Among the entire fall 2009 student population, more than 36 percent are Asian, African-American, Latino, or Native Hawaiian/Pacific Islander, and nearly 10 percent are international.

Central to the mission of the University of San Francisco is the preparation of men and women to shape a multicultural world with generosity, compassion, and justice. The institution's most recent Vision, Mission, and Values Statement, approved by the Board of Trustees on September 11, 2001, after a year of formulation and campus-wide participation, captures the essence of this commitment in its opening paragraph: "The University of San Francisco will be internationally recognized as a premier Jesuit Catholic, urban University with a global perspective that educates leaders who will fashion a more humane and just world." This mission permeates all aspects of the institution, including student learning and faculty development, curriculum design, program and degree offerings, alumni relations, publications, and a host of other institutional features.

In 2005, the University of San Francisco celebrated the 150th anniversary of its founding. The main USF campus currently occupies 55 acres near Golden Gate Park in San Francisco. In addition, the university offers classes at four Northern California regional campuses and at a Southern California regional campus. The schools and colleges comprising the institution also offer students a multitude of international experiences and study-abroad programs that enrich the learning community and fulfill the university's mission. The institution has grown dramatically since its modest beginning. It continues, however, to fulfill a mission that stretches back in time to the founding of the Society of Jesus in 1540 by St. Ignatius of Loyola, that took root in San Francisco in 1855, and that flourishes today in a premier Jesuit Catholic University.

usf basic information

FULL NAME OF INSTITUTION:

University of San Francisco

ADDRESS:

2130 Fulton Street, San Francisco, CA 94117-1080

WEB SITE ADDRESS:

www.usfca.edu

GENERAL INFORMATION PHONE NUMBER:

415 422-5555

PRESIDENT:

Stephen A. Privett, S.J.

PROVOST:

James L. Wisner

SPONSORSHIP AND CONTROL:

USF is an independent, private, non-profit institution of higher education governed by a 43-member Board of Trustees. It is one of the 28 Jesuit Catholic colleges and universities in the United States.

FOUNDING AND CHARTER:

USF was founded in 1855 and was granted a charter by the State of California to issue college degrees in 1859.

ACCREDITATION

The University of San Francisco is accredited by the Western Association of Schools and Colleges (WASC), an accreditation first granted in 1950 by the Western College Association (WCA), the antecedent of WASC. Periodically, USF's accreditation is reaffirmed by WASC.

USF is also accredited by several professional accrediting bodies, including, but not limited to, the American Bar Association (ABA), the California Commission on Teacher Credentialing, AACSB International—The Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business, and the Commission on Collegiate Nursing Education (CCNE).

CLASSIFICATION BY THE CARNEGIE FOUNDATION FOR THE ADVANCEMENT OF TEACHING:

USF is classified as a Doctoral/Research and Community Engaged University.

Under the new Carnegie Foundation classification system, USF is characterized as balancing arts, sciences, and the professions at the undergraduate level; as doctoral/professional dominant at the graduate level; with the majority of its students being undergraduates; as selective, with a high level of transfer-in students; and as a medium-sized, four-year, and primarily residential institution. In 2006, USF received the community engagement classification in both possible categories, curriculum engagement and outreach and partnership.

select firsts, honors, and achievements in 2009

- USF was listed as a Tier One National University in the 2010 U.S. News & World Report, and was rated 30th in the magazine's separate ranking of national universities regarding undergraduate student ethnic diversity.
- USF tied for 10th place in The Chronicle of Higher Education's ranking of top producers of Fulbright scholars among faculty members at research institutions in 2009–10, and was one of only 22 research institutions to be listed.
- For the third year in a row, the Corporation for National and Community Service selected USF for the President's Higher Education Community Service Honor Roll with Distinction, one of only 19 schools nationwide to receive this honor in three successive years. Reasons for selection included the large number of students engaged in service-learning and community service in a single year, the total number of hours USF students were so engaged, the exemplary nature of USF's community service projects, and the quality of projects that addressed the year's special focus on service to improve high school graduation and college readiness for youth from disadvantaged circumstances.
- USF was ranked among the top 100 universities in the nation for civic engagement, according to a 2009 published study, which surveyed more than 3,000 institutions. The study, titled "Saviors of Our Cities: Survey of Best College and University Civic Partnerships," was conducted by Evan Dobbelle, president of Westfield State College in Massachusetts.
- The USF School of Law was listed as one of the top 100 law schools in the 2010 U.S. News & World Report rankings, and it was 14th in the magazine's separate diversity rankings. In addition, USF's part-time JD program ranked 28th out of 86 schools in the magazine's first listing of part-time programs. USF students' average LSAT scores ranked 13th among students in all part-time programs.
- A 2009 report by the National Science Foundation noted that among bachelor of science graduates from the natural sciences in USF's College of Arts and Sciences, 8.5 percent went on to earn doctorates from 2000 to 2008, more than twice the national average among comparable institutions.
- The USF Chapter of Beta Alpha Psi, an honorary organization of financial information students and professionals, achieved superior chapter status in 2009, the highest recognition from that national organization. The USF students, in the School of Business and Professional Studies, logged in 1,122 professional development hours and 821 hours of community service.
- In 2009, nursing school graduate and professional funk style street dancer Marina Stankov-Hodge received a Fulbright arts grant to teach dance choreography, potentially in conjunction with reproductive health education in Brazil. Marina is currently conducting research for a master's thesis on health policy at the Geneva School of Diplomacy and International Relations in Geneva, Switzerland. She is the third recent USF student to win a Fulbright, following Kelko Petrosky in 2004-05. and Su-Lin Thronson in 2000-01.
- In 2009, the USF School of Education became the first school in the nation to offer an emphasis in human rights for masters and doctoral education students. Seventeen international and multicultural education students enrolled in the emphasis in the Spring 2009 semester.

USF men's golf won the 2009 West Coast Conference Championship; the team's coach, Dr. Gary Nelson, captured WCC Coach of the Year honors; and three players earned all league selection: Domingo Jojola, Chris Cunningham, and Kurt Nino.

The USF track and field team earned five individual titles at the San Francisco State University Invitational in April 2009. Alex Delgadillo won the men's javelin; Michelle Born took first place in the 1500-meter; Nicole Bewler won the 800-meter title; Alanna Nulph won the women's shot-put; and Oliver Kirkeby took first place in the men's shot put.

In the fall of 2009, there were 224 student-athletes at USF, 168 of whom had full or partial athletic scholarships.

Among the student-athletes, 134 were men (86 of whom had scholarships), and 90 were women (82 of whom had scholarships).

■ The University of San Francisco's NCAA Division I teams include men's basketball, soccer, baseball, golf, tennis, and cross-country, and women's basketball, cross-country, golf, soccer, tennis, volleyball, and track.

■ USF NCAA Division I teams have won eight national championships since 1949, including four in men's soccer, three in men's basketball, and one in men's tennis.

■ The men's basketball team has won 15 West Coast Conference titles since 1949.

■ The men's soccer team has won 35 West Coast Conference titles since 1948.

■ From 1987 to 2000, the women's basketball team won three West Coast Conference titles, secured three NCAA tournament berths, and had one Sweet Sixteen appearance.

■ In 2006, Debi Gore-Mann became the first female athletic director in school history, and only the third ever in the West Coast Conference.

■ In 2008, the NCAA recognized the University of San Francisco's athletics department for its gender diversity and presented it with Diversity in Athletics Award, which recognizes NCAA Division I athletic departments that excel in different areas of diversity. USF was one of just 12 schools recognized in the category of gender diversity of department employees.

■ USF placed 96 student-athletes on the West Coast Conference's 2008-09 Commissioner's Honor Roll, which recognizes student-athletes who possess at least a 3.0 grade-point average on a 4.0 scale. Of those, 14 student-athletes earned gold honors (GPA of at least 3.75).

key events during 2009

FEBRUARY 4

The University of San Francisco welcomed the Superior General of the Society of Jesus, Adolfo Nicolás, S.J., to the campus, where he presided at a Eucharistic liturgy at St. Ignatius Church; shared lunch at Loyola House with students from USF and St. Ignatius College Preparatory High School; and attended a reception for benefactors, apostolic partners, and program directors at the McLaren Conference Center.

MAY 22–23

A total of 1,641 undergraduate and graduate students were invited to participate in the May commencement exercises. Among those who received honorary degrees during graduation were Bishop Kevin Dowling of Rustenburg, South Africa, who was honored for his work in helping to stop the spread of HIV/AIDS in South Africa; Daniel Schutte, USF's composer-in-residence, for exemplifying excellence as one of the most influential composers in the world of contemporary Catholic liturgical music; Robert Corrigan, San Francisco State University president, for his leadership, vision, and commitment to higher education; Heather Fong, San Francisco police chief, for her dedicated public service, reform mindedness, and unsurpassed integrity; and James Sinegal, president and CEO of Costco, for his company's exemplary treatment of its employees.

JUNE 9

The Board of Trustees of the University of San Francisco unanimously approved an offer of a third, five-year contract for Stephen A. Privett, S.J., to continue as USF's president. Fr. Privett accepted the offer, which commences on September 14, 2010. Claudio Chiuchiarelli, Chairman of the Board, said that board anticipates that the next six years will continue to bring USF recognition as "a premier Jesuit Catholic urban university that educates leaders who will fashion a more humane and just world."

JUNE 10

USF announced the creation of a new school, the School of Business and Professional Studies, merging the programs, faculty, staff, students, and alumni of the School of Business and Management and the College of Professional Studies. Mike Duffy, the dean of the School of Business and Management, will serve as the founding dean for USF's new school.

JUNE 17–25

Faculty and staff from USF engaged in a weeklong immersion program to El Salvador. Led by Mike Duffy, director of the Joan and Ralph Lane Center for Catholic Studies and Social Thought, 10 faculty and staff from departments as varied as admissions, residence life, politics, and law met with Salvadoran elected officials, clergy, and leaders of the University of Central America. The trip was similar in purpose to previous immersions organized by USF President Stephen Privett, S.J., in 2003, 2005, 2007, and 2008 for USF trustees, vice presidents, and deans. The intent is to focus USF's administrators, faculty, and staff on the mission of educating students to create a more humane and just world by introducing them to those who live vastly different lives than most Americans.

SEPTEMBER 30

Kjell Magne Bondevik, former prime minister of Norway and the founding president of the Oslo Center for Peace and Human Rights, was awarded an honorary degree and gave a major address on the USF campus. Bondevik, a Lutheran minister who twice served as Norway's prime minister from 1997 to 2005, is known for increasing programs in health care and education, appointing large numbers of women to cabinet posts, protecting the environment, and pledging humanitarian aid to war-ravaged Iraq. The Oslo Center for Peace and Human Rights, which he founded in 2006, promotes international human rights activities, world peace, religious tolerance, and democracy.

NOVEMBER 5

USF awarded Alice Waters, food activist, renowned chef, and founder of the Berkeley restaurant Chez Panisse, its 2009 California Prize for Public Service and the Common Good. Waters is an internationally known advocate for sustainable agriculture and a supporter of locally grown food and local markets. She also created the Chez Panisse Foundation to support educational programs that use food to nurture, educate, and empower youth.

NOVEMBER 16

Twenty years after the murder of six Jesuit priests, their housekeeper and her daughter, by members of the Salvadorian army in retaliation for the Jesuits' work to promote social justice in El Salvador, USF commemorated their deaths with a series of daylong events. The commemorative events included a reflection on the Jesuit priests and the meaning of Jesuit education by USF President, Stephen Privett, S.J.; a Mass of Commemoration by Fr. Privett; a keynote presentation by Kevin Burke, S.J., academic dean and acting president of the Jesuit School of Theology in Berkeley; a series of advocacy workshops presented by the Leo T. McCarthy Center for Public Service and the Common Good; and a Candlelight Vigil from St. Ignatius Church to Lone Mountain.

DECEMBER 18

A total of 785 undergraduate and graduate students were invited to participate in the December commencement exercises. Among those who received honorary degrees during graduation were Craig Newmark, Craigslist founder and supporter of a number of nonprofit and philanthropic organizations; Sister Janet Vera Harris, chaplain at the Los Angeles Central Juvenile Hall and defender of the rights of children in the pursuit of justice; and Santa Clara University's Professor Francisco Jiménez, Mexican immigrant and migrant laborer, who became a leading scholar and authority on Chicano literature.
