BLACK CULTURE WEEK
SLATED AT USF

Contact:

Joseph Marshall, Chairman or
Joseph Christy, Press Director
BSU-USF, phone 752-7893

The Black Students' Union of the University of San Francisco has announced plans to sponsor a Black Cultural Week dedicated to the memory of martyr Malcolm X.

BSU chairman Joseph Marshall said events of the week Feb. 17-21, although directed mainly to students, would be open to the public of the Bay Area.

Tentative plans include the following events:

Monday evening, Feb., 17, a program on the history of Afro-American music:

Tuesday, Feb. 18, a fashion show presented by the New Breed, Inc., and a contemporary play, "Back to Black," written and directed by Miss Desi Jones;

Symposium
Wednesday, Feb. 19, a Black Madonna Program presented by students of the San Francisco College for Women, highlighting sculpture, art, music, dance, photography, pottery, and magazine layout and design.

Thursday noon, Feb. 20, a rally featuring the return of former USF All-American Bill Russell, now player-coach of the Boston Celtics of the National Basketball Association, and appearances by many former USF black athletes; demonstration

MUSIC, DRAMA, ART
IN BLACK CULTURAL WEEK AT USF

The Black Students' Union of the University of San Francisco will observe Black Cultural Week starting Monday (Feb. 17) with nightly programs featuring music, fashions, art, and drama, BSU president Joe Marshall has announced.

"The week is dedicated to slain Brother Malcolm X," Marshall said, "and we welcome the public to attend our cultural events."

Four musical groups will present "History of Afro-American Music" Monday night at 7:30 in Phelan Hall on the USF campus. Performing will be The Delegates, The Machine, the Songs of Harmony, and the Star Bethel Choir, all coordinated by Randall Norton. Admission is $1.50 for adults, $1 for students, and children free.

Tuesday, 7:30 p.m. in Phelan Hall, Om and Daniel Harper of New Breed Clothiers in Oakland will stage a fashion show. Immediately following will be a play entitled "Back to Black," written and directed by Desi Jones and dealing with the black experience. Admission to both events is $2 for adults and students, children free.

Wednesday night will feature two speakers on "Narcotics and the Black Man," followed by the Black Madonna Program with artists from that group's headquarters at San Francisco College for Women. Admission is free to the two events, opening at 7:30p.m. in Phelan Hall.

Joe Merit and Dennis Johnson of the Narcotics Symposium, Oakland, will discuss drug problems among blacks and will welcome audience questions. The Black Madonna artists will exhibit results -- in dance, painting, and sculpture -- of the creative arts program launched at Lone Mountain a year ago with support from the black community.

Former USF black athletes will meet students Thursday at 11:30 a.m. in the University Plaza. Bill Russell, Gene Brown, Hal Perry, Lloyd Moffatt, Huey Thomas, Joe Ellis, and others are scheduled to appear.

At 4:30 Thursday, a "Que" dinner will be served in the University Commons. A second performance of "Back to Black" will be staged at 8 p.m. in Phelan Hall, and a surprise guest celebrity will be introduced at the end of the show.

Friday, 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. on campus, BSU members will hold a memorial tribute in honor of Malcolm X.

Black Cultural Week at USF will conclude with a symposium in Kezar Pavilion Friday at 7:30 p.m. Leading a discussion of black issues will be San Francisco Assemblyman Willie Brown, Jr., Berkeley City Councilman Ron Dellums, Rev. B.T. Anderson and Rev. H.A. Bryant of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, Mrs. Ray Richardson of the Success Bookstore in San Francisco, and Ron Karenga of the Los Angeles organization called US. Admission to the symposium will be $1.

Tickets to all events may be purchased at the BSU office in Phelan Hall at USF, the Success Book Store, 450 McAllister, and Tape-A-Tune Record Shop, 5883 San Pablo, in Oakland.

Information on Black Cultural Week at USF is available from the campus BSU office, telephone 752-7893.

Father Elliot A. Short, S.J., USF chaplain, has announced that an Afro-American Mass, featuring African student drummers, will be offered at 4 p.m. this Sunday (Feb. 16) in St. Ignatius Church, Fulton Street and Parker Avenue. He said the Mass would be in honor of USF's first Black Cultural Week. Father Short will be the principal celebrant.
