a brief history

The University of San Francisco began in 1855 as a one-room schoolhouse named Saint Ignatius Academy. Its founding is interwoven with the establishment of the Jesuit Order in California, European immigration to the western United States, and the population growth of California and San Francisco as a result of the California Gold Rush.

On October 15, 1855, the school opened its doors to its first class. Three students showed up, a number that gradually grew to 65 by 1858. In 1859, Anthony Maraschi, S.J., the founding president of Saint Ignatius Academy, incorporated the institution under California state law, obtained a charter to issue college degrees, formed a board of trustees, and renamed the institution Saint Ignatius College. Student enrollment, composed largely of first- and second-generation Irish and Italian immigrants, increased to 457 by 1862.

Further growth in the number of students and rising property taxes prompted Saint Ignatius Church and College to move in 1880 to the corner of Hayes Street and Van Ness Avenue, the current site of the Louise M. Davies Symphony Hall. The college opened its doors to 650 students and rave reviews in the local press. The institution occupied a full city block and was described as having “scientific laboratories and departments” as “thoroughly equipped as money can make them” and a library that contained “the cream of knowledge on all necessary subjects.” The attached church was described as “magnificent” and could hold up to 4,000 people. In 1903, the college added a “splendid new gymnasium,” described as the best in the city.

The history of St. Ignatius Church and College at this location came to an abrupt end on April 18, 1906. On the morning of that day, an earthquake, followed by several days of fire, brought the church and college, and most of San Francisco, to almost complete ruin. The city and the institution, however, quickly rebuilt from the devastation. In September 1906, Saint Ignatius Church and School reopened in temporary quarters, known as the “shirt factory,” on the southwest corner of Hayes and Shrader streets, currently the site of one of the buildings of St Mary’s Medical Center. In 1927, St. Ignatius College moved into its new Liberal Arts Building, the present Kalmanovitz Hall, near the corner of Fulton and Parker Streets. In 1930, at the request of several alumni groups, Saint Ignatius College changed its name to the University of San Francisco.

For 157 years, the University of San Francisco has served the citizens of San Francisco and enriched the lives of thousands of people. The institution has graduated students who went on to become leaders in government, education, business, journalism, sports, and the legal and medical professions. Among its alumni, the university counts three San Francisco mayors, a United States Senator, four California Supreme Court Justices, a California Lieutenant Governor, two Pulitzer Prize winners, three Olympic medalists, several professional athletes, and the former president of Peru.

Today the University of San Francisco enrolls more than 9,800 students in its five schools and colleges: The School of Law, founded in 1912; the College of Arts and Sciences, organized in 1925; the School of Management, which began in 1925 as the College of Commerce and Finance and was merged with the College of Professional Studies in 2009; the School of Education, which started as the Department of Education in 1947 and was upgraded to a school in 1972; and the School of Nursing and Health Professions, which began as the Department of Nursing in 1948 and became a school in 1954. USF is one of the most ethnically diverse universities in the nation. Among the entire fall 2011 student population, 43 percent are Asian, African-American, Latino, Native Hawaiian/Pacific Islander, or Native American, and 12 percent are international.

Central to the mission of the University of San Francisco is the preparation of men and women to shape a multicultural world with generosity, compassion, and justice. The institution's Vision, Mission, and Values Statement, approved by the Board of Trustees on September 11, 2001, after a year of formulation and campus-wide participation, captures the essence of this commitment in its opening paragraph: "The University of San Francisco will be internationally recognized as a premier Jesuit Catholic, urban University with a global perspective that educates leaders who will fashion a more humane and just world." This mission permeates all aspects of the institution, including student learning and faculty development, curriculum design, program and degree offerings, alumni relations, publications, and a host of other institutional features.

In 2005, the University of San Francisco celebrated the 150th anniversary of its founding. The main USF campus currently occupies 55 acres near Golden Gate Park in San Francisco. In addition, the university offers classes at four Northern California regional campuses, at a Southern California regional campus, and at locations in downtown San Francisco and at the Presidio. The schools and colleges comprising the institution also offer students a multitude of international experiences and study-abroad programs that enrich the learning community and fulfill the university's mission. The institution has grown dramatically since its modest beginning. It continues, however, to fulfill a mission that stretches back in time to the founding of the Society of Jesus in 1540 by St. Ignatius of Loyola, that took root in San Francisco in 1855, and that flourishes today in a premier Jesuit Catholic University.

Stephen A. Privett, S.J.

PROVOST:

Jennifer E. Turpin

SPONSORSHIP AND CONTROL:

USF is an independent, private, non-profit institution of higher education governed by a 43-member Board of Trustees. It is one of the 28 Jesuit Catholic colleges and universities in the United States.

FOUNDING AND CHARTER:

USF was founded in 1855 and was granted a charter by the State of California to issue college degrees in 1859.

ACCREDITATION

The University of San Francisco is accredited by the Western Association of Schools and Colleges (WASC), an accreditation first granted in 1950 by the Western College Association (WCA), the antecedent of WASC. In 2009, WASC reaffirmed USF's accreditation for 10 years.

USF is also accredited by several professional accrediting bodies, including, but not limited to, the American Bar Association (ABA), the California Commission on Teacher Credentialing, AACSB International—The Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business, and the Commission on Collegiate Nursing Education (CCNE).

CLASSIFICATION BY THE CARNEGIE FOUNDATION FOR THE ADVANCEMENT OF TEACHING:

USF is classified as a Doctoral/Research and Community Engaged University.

Under the new Carnegie Foundation classification system, USF is characterized as balancing arts, sciences, and the professions at the undergraduate level; as doctoral/professional dominant at the graduate level; with the majority of its students being undergraduates; as selective, with a high level of transfer-in students; and as a medium-sized, four-year, and primarily residential institution. In 2006, USF received the community engagement classification in both possible categories, curriculum engagement and outreach and partnership.

select firsts, honors, and achievements in 2011-12

- USF was listed as a Tier One National University in the 2012 U.S. News & World Report, and was tied for 11th place in undergraduate student ethnic diversity among 280 national universities.
- For the sixth straight year, USF was named to the President's Higher Education Community Service Honor Roll by the Corporation for National and Community Service. This honor highlights USF students' exemplary service on issues ranging from poverty and homelessness, to environmental justice. Honorees are chosen on the basis of the scope and impact of service projects, percentage of students participating in service activities, and the extent to which the school offers academic service-learning courses.
- USF was selected as one of five universities in the nation to receive the 2012 Higher Education Civic Engagement Award from the Washington Center for Internships and Academic Seminars. USF was recognized for its contributions to the community, leadership and professional achievement, and enrichment of student learning. Fr. Privett will be recognized at the Washington Center's Award Gala on October 1, and USF will receive a $20,000 scholarship to support student participation in the Center's programs.
- Three USF faculty members were among the 180 John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation Fellowship winners for 2011. The fellowships are selected from almost 3,000 applicants per year to provide individuals with blocks of time in which they can work with as much creative freedom as possible. Richard Leo, School of Law professor, won a Guggenheim Fellowship to work on his book, The Innocence Revolution, a history of the founding of the Innocence Project and the consequential exoneration of hundreds of wrongly convicted U.S. prisoners as a result of DNA evidence. D.A. Powell, associate professor of English, College of Arts and Sciences, won a Guggenheim Fellowship to work on his book, Useless Landscape, or a Guide for Boys, a collection of poems drawing from the landscape of California. David Vann, associate professor, MFA in Writing, College of Arts and Sciences, won a Guggenheim Fellowship to work on his sixth novel, Dirt, drawing on Vann's family history in California's Central Valley.
- The Washington Monthly ranked USF as 12th out of 258 national universities on a combined measure of the number of staff supporting community service, relative to the total number of staff; the number of academic courses that incorporate service, relative to school size; and whether the institution provides scholarships for community service.
- The Princeton Review named USF one of the "Best Western Colleges" and San Francisco 6th in the nation for "Great College Towns."
- In 2012, Catholic Relief Services, the official international humanitarian agency of the U.S. Catholic Community, selected USF as a partner in a global solidarity educational effort that will, in the words of Fr. Privett, "promote a disciplined sensitivity to human suffering, especially among the poorest and most vulnerable members of the global village and an awareness of the particular applicability of key Catholic social tenets to poor populations in developing countries."

- USF Provost Jennifer Turpin was named by the San Francisco Business Times to the list of the most influential women in the Bay Area for the second straight year in 2012. Moira Gunn, Assistant Professor in the School of Management, also received this honor in 2011. The list recognizes 150 outstanding women professionals who make a difference in their companies, industries, and communities
- The USF's School of Law was listed among the top tier law schools in the 2013 U.S. News & World Report, and was ranked among the top 10 law schools in the nation for Hispanics in 2009, 2010, and 2011 by Hispanic Business Magazine.
- USF's Masagung Graduate School of Management was named one of the 300 "outstanding institutions" in the 2012 edition of the Princeton Review Annual Best Business Schools Guidebook. The Princeton Review collected opinions of more than 19,000 students at AACSB accredited MBA programs around the world, as well as statistical information on MBA programs in order to give the readers the widest possible base of information for selecting the right business school.
- For the second year in a row, a USF School of Education graduate was named California Teacher of the Year. Kadhira Rajagopal, who earned a master's degree in teaching at USF in 2005, and who teaches math at Union High School near Sacramento, was honored as 2011 Teacher of the Year by California Superintendent of Public Instruction Jack O'Connell. Valerie Ziegler, who earned a master's degree in education from USF in 2004, won the award in 2010.
- In one of the poorest areas of San Francisco, the Bayview-Hunters point neighborhood, faculty and students from the Architecture and Community Design Outreach Program (ARCD), in the College of Arts and Sciences, worked with the City of San Francisco and the community to design and construct the Bridgeview Teaching and Learning Garden, which won the City's 2011 NEN award for Best Green Community Project. The goal of the project was to educate community members in organic gardening skills, beautify the neighborhood, and build social cohesion.
- USF was named by G.I. Jobs Magazine as a Military Friendly School for 2012, ranking USF in the top 15% of all colleges, universities, and trade schools nationwide.
- USF was recognized by the Sierra Club as one of the "coolest" universities in the United States, ranking 56th out of 118 schools, based on environmental practices, green initiatives, and caliber of sustainability-oriented education. USF also received an A- grade on the Sustainability Report Card for 2011, issued by the Sustainable Endowment Foundation.

usf student profile

As of September 9, 2011 (Census Date), the University of San Francisco enrolled 9,837 students, including 5,961 undergraduate students, 2,948 graduate students, 734 law students, and 194 special/non-degree students.

USF Student Awards

■ Anabel Cassidy, a senior majoring in politics, was the recipient of the Spirit of St. Francis Award. The award recognizes outstanding service, especially to the poor and disenfranchised in San Francisco and beyond.

■ Alia Al-Sharif, a senior psychology major, received USF's Pedro Arrupe Award. The award, named in honor of the 28th Superior General of the Society of Jesus, honors a student who exemplifies a commitment to justice by working to transform social structures to alleviate poverty and oppression.

■ Joseph Ekman, a junior majoring in information systems, created the Emergency Standard Card, a wallet-sized, color-coded card, to alert medical responders to a patient's special needs, medications, and medical conditions. The card has a virtual counterpart, the ICE Standard emergency card – a popular iPhone app with the same function. The app also includes the patient's emergency contacts, blood type, age, and insurance information.

■ A team (Ian Deyoung, Lauren Corke, Daniel Conaty, Ana Munoz, and Zohair Rizvi) of USF art and architecture students won second place at the de Young Museum's New Generation Student Showcase for their design of an orphanage to house homeless children in Haiti. The orphanage would house 25 girls ages 5 to 17 and include sleeping and eating quarters, staff quarters, play spaces, and a courtyard.

■ Ann Kariuki, a third-year law student, received the National Black Law Students Association's (NBLSA) outstanding student award for 2011.

athletics

The baseball team secured its second overall and first outright West Coast Conference championship to end the 2011 regular season.

During the last two seasons, the USF baseball team raised money to purchase more than 260 insecticide-treated nets for families in malaria-risk areas of Africa, through pledges for USF homeruns and strikeouts by USF pitchers.

The women's cross country team won its third consecutive West Coast Conference championship during 2011-2012 season, breaking the school record for lowest team-time in history.

In May 2011, Scott Sidwell was named USF's new athletic director, coming from Syracuse University where he served as executive senior associate athletic director.

In 2012, men's golf team advanced to the NCAA West Regional for the second consecutive season, marking the first time in program history that the team captured consecutive postseason births.

In the fall of 2011, there were 224 student-athletes at USF, 158 of whom had full or partial athletic scholarships.

Among the student-athletes, 134 were men (81 of whom had scholarships), and 90 were women (77 of whom had scholarships).

- The University of San Francisco's NCAA Division I teams include men's basketball, soccer, baseball, golf, tennis, track, and cross-country, and women's basketball, cross-country, golf, soccer, tennis, volleyball, and track.
- USF NCAA Division I teams have won eight national championships since 1949, including four in men's soccer, three in men's basketball, and one in men's tennis.
- The men's basketball team has won 15 West Coast Conference titles since 1949.
- The men's soccer team has won 35 West Coast Conference titles since 1948.
- From 1987 to 2000, the women's basketball team won three West Coast Conference titles, secured three NCAA tournament berths, and had one Sweet Sixteen appearance.

key events from July 2011 to June 2012

JULY 8

The USF School of Business and Professional Studies was renamed the School of Management, and encompasses the McLaren School of Management for undergraduate students and the Masagung Graduate School of Management for graduate students. The new name reflects the reality that current and future graduates need to be prepared for more inclusive management careers in for-profit businesses, nonprofit organizations, and in the government sector.

AUGUST 2

USF purchased the historic Folger Building at 101 Howard Street in downtown San Francisco. Listed on the National Registry of Historic Places, and located within walking distance of where USF first opened its doors in 1855 on Market Street, purchase of the Folger Building marks a return to the university's origins in downtown San Francisco. In addition to expanding USF's classroom space, which is near capacity on the Hilltop campus, the building will raise the university's profile and enhance its ties to San Francisco's legal, financial, and business communities.

SEPTEMBER 12

USF's School of Nursing changed its name to the School of Nursing and Health Professions. The name change reflected the school's expansion to include a master of public health (MPH) degree beginning in the fall of 2011. The initial MPH cohort had 22 students pursuing graduate work in community health, global health, and health promotion education.

NOVEMBER 1

USF awarded the California Prize for Service and the Common Good to Daniel Lurie, CEO of the nonprofit Tipping Point Community, for his efforts to find, fund, and partner with outstanding Bay Area nonprofits that serve low-income families and individuals.

NOVEMBER 18

The USF community completed a successful Thanksgiving Food Drive that raised more than $15,000 for families in the Western Addition of San Francisco, an increase of several thousand dollars from 2010. More than 100 USF volunteers packaged and distributed food boxes for families purchased from the money raised.

NOVEMBER 18

USF supported the Occupy Wall Street movement as a teachable moment, by developing a new curriculum and organizing a series of town hall meetings regarding the inequalities of wealth in the nation. A student group also pitched tents and peacefully camped out on the main campus to demonstrate solidarity with the movement.

DECEMBER 1

USF observed World AIDS Day, with several on-campus events, including a workshop about HIV/AIDS transmission and prevention, a panel discussion among HIV-positive individuals, and a documentary film with Alicia Keys.

DECEMBER 5

USF's School of Education and its partners in the San Francisco Teacher Residency Program received a $2.2 million U.S. Department of Education Grant to prepare San Francisco teachers for hard-to-staff schools and high-needs students, including in the areas of math, science, and bilingual education.

DECEMBER 16

A total of 864 students were invited to attend the December commencement. USF honored Clarence Benjamin Jones, former advisor, attorney, and speechwriter for the late Martin Luther King Jr. Mr. Jones was awarded a White House Letter of Commendation for his 1963 civil rights work in Birmingham, Alabama, and he was the first African American partner in a Wall Street investment bank in the 1970s. USF also honored Dominic Tarantino, class of 1954, who served on the USF Board of Trustees for 18 years and was chairman of the board from 1999 to 2003. He played a key role in recruiting USF President Stephen A. Privett, S.J., to the university, and he was an early advocate for extending USF's benefits to legally domiciled adults, making USF the first Jesuit university in the nation to do so in 2004. The third honorary degree recipient was Rachel Naomi Remen, MD, the founding director of the Commonwealth Institute for the Study of Health and Illness, a nonprofit organization that promotes innovation in health care, and provides education and support for health care professionals.

FEBRUARY 7

USF opens a new campus in San Jose, catering to working professionals who want to complete a bachelor's or master's degree. The newly renovated building includes seven smart classrooms equipped with the latest technology, a library, conference space, and lounges for students and faculty.

FEBRUARY 7

USF was chosen by Catholic Relief Services (CRS), the official international relief and development agency of the Catholic Church in the U.S., as one of three Catholic universities in the U.S., and the only Jesuit university, to be part of Scholars in Global Solidarity. This program aims to develop student solidarity, faculty expertise, and course curriculum for marginalized communities around the world. USF was selected for its demonstrated leadership and excellence in applying Catholic social teaching to its social justice mission and for its focus on addressing the causes of poverty. As an expression of this partnership, USF President Stephen Privett, S.J., was part of a mid-January CRS-sponsored delegation for Catholic university presidents to Rwanda and Burundi.

March 12

The University of San Francisco was named to the President's Higher Education Community Service Honor Roll for the sixth straight year by the Corporation for National and Community Service. This honor highlights USF students' exemplary service on issues ranging from poverty and homelessness, to environmental justice. Honorees are chosen on the basis of the scope and impact of service projects, percentage of students participating in service activities, incentives for service, and the extent to which the school offers academic service-learning courses.

MARCH 25

USF opens its new Pleasanton campus. The new campus, previously located in San Ramon, includes six smart classrooms, a library and computer lab, administrative and student advisory offices, private faculty offices, and student and faculty lounges.

April 2

USF initiated the Higher Standard Campaign, a major advertising effort to re-introduce itself to the city. Ads blanketed downtown San Francisco and city buses in April and May and will do so again in September and October. The ad campaign included 14 provocative headlines, such as "University of the Best City Ever," that emphasized the university's commitment to academic excellence, a culture of service, a passion for social justice, and its deep ties to San Francisco. The campaign followed the university's launch of a new logo and tagline, "Change the World from Here."

May 8

The Association to Advance Collegiate Schools of Business-International (AACSB) extended accreditation for the undergraduate and master's degree programs in the School of Management at USF for five years, concluding a two-year maintenance of accreditation effort by the School of Management and the Provost's Office. During the past 12 months, the Western Association of Schools and Colleges (WASC) also accredited a new PsyD in Clinical Psychology with an Emphasis in Behavioral Health (May 31, 2012), an online Master of Public Administration (April 30, 2012), and an online Master of Science in Nursing (September 2, 2011)

MAY 17-19

A total of 2,027 students were invited to attend the May commencement. USF awarded honorary degrees to Bill Cosby, comedian, actor, author, and educator; Holly Petraeus, assistant director of the Office of Service Member Affairs in the Treasury Department's Consumer Financial Protection Bureau; Ken Hackett, former president of Catholic Relief Services; Lynn Woolsey, U.S. Representative for California's 6th Congressional District; Michael Sheeran, S.J., President, Regis University; Goodwin Hon Liu, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of California; and Ralf Hotchkiss, director and chief engineer of Whirlwind Wheelchair International Institute for Civic and Community Engagement at San Francisco State University. Other speakers at commencement included San Francisco Mayor Ed Lee and U.S. Under Secretary of Education Martha Kanter, EdD '89.
