INDIGENOUS KNOWLEDGES FOR A POST- WESTERN WORLD

CO-SPONSORED WITH THE GLOBAL WOMEN'S RIGHTS FORUM

Since publishing her groundbreaking book, Decolonizing Methodologies in 1999, Dr. Linda Tuhiwai Smith's work has launched a movement of Indigenous-led critiques on academic thought and pursuits of knowledge while inspiring efforts that promote Indigenous autonomy and power in research interventions.

In the context of the Spring '21 Davies Forum, Dr. Smith will address the question of how indigenous knowledge(s) can help us to make sense of a nascent, post-Western world – the arrival of which may have been accelerated by the COVID-19 pandemic – where the West's relative primacy in shaping world affairs may be in eclipse.
